

Dear ACMF community,

We want to take a moment to assure you that we are watching the developments around the novel coronavirus closely. At this time, we are planning to proceed as usual with the 9th annual Atlanta Chamber Music Festival. The safety of our students, faculty, staff, and community is our top priority. We will continue to monitor the situation and make adjustments as needed, following all guidelines offered by the Centers for Disease Control and Emory University.

On a more personal note, we would like to take the opportunity to thank you for all of your support over the years, and to offer you this perspective: we strive for the highest possible caliber of music making, but we take just as much pride in the supportive, positive atmosphere that our participants create. Practicing social distancing, while physically isolating, is a tremendous act of community support. We are coming together in ways we never realized we could, and in that way, we are creating something just as beautiful as the music we make together each summer. We are grateful to be able to keep in touch with you through technology until we can see you in person again, which we hope will be very soon.

We will continue to keep you updated, and we thank you for your patience and support during this time.

Sincerely,
Jonathan Wright and Jessica Sherer
